

TOGETHER, STEPPING INTO THE FUTURE OF THE LGPS

CONFERENCE AGENDA

HYMANS  ROBERTSON

16 MAY 2024

10:30 Registration, tea/coffee & pastries

11:00 Welcome and introduction to the day

Robbie McInroy, Hymans Robertson

11:15 What next for the LGPS?

In an election year, we look at the macro factors that are likely to shape the future of the LGPS. We'll discuss public service pension policy in the UK (and beyond); the delivery of local government services and how the LGPS supports recruitment and retention; and how the LGPS will be influenced by wider retirement provision trends and innovation.

12:20 Lunch

13:30 LGPS Senior Officer role – operational future

We expect regulation from DLUHC to implement the findings of the SAB Good Governance Project, including the need to have a Senior LGPS Officer. What should the LGPS Senior Officer be thinking about to deliver in the future? What skills and experience do you need to fill the role, what will your team look like and how do we grow Senior LGPS Officers of the future?

Ian Colvin, Hymans Robertson

14:05 The future of ESG

ESG isn't new but we'll take a look at the future direction - starting from the implementation of requirements on TCFD to conversation on nature, social impact and inequality. We look at what you can do now to prepare your decision-makers.

14:35 Tea/coffee break

15:00 The future of investment risk management

Funds are now in surplus, so what does that mean for risk? 'Risk on' as there's a buffer against losses? 'Risk off' as less return is needed? Either way, as an open-ended investor what does risk management look like for the LGPS? We consider solutions which focus on achieving protection whilst balancing the trade-off of long-term returns for managing short-term risks.

Iain Campbell, Hymans Robertson

15:35 Translating big tech trends into the LGPS

We explore the profound impact of technological advancements on the LGPS fund operations and stakeholders. We'll delve into the challenges and opportunities brought about by these, offering insights to empower officers in navigating the digital revolution effectively.

Chris Varley, Hymans Robertson
